HONOKONG. JUNE 25TH. 1880.

WHEN reproducing the telegraphic account from Indian papers of the landing of the Marquisof Rreon at Bombay, we noticed that the name of Colonel Gorpon appeared among those of the members of His Lordship's staff, but, having regard to the Reuter's telegrams lately received concerning that gallant officer, imagined it might be a mistake. We have since ascertained, however, that not only did Colonel GORDON accompany the new Vicercy to Bombay but that he had taken a passage back to Aden by steamer leaving Bombay for that port the to make for some port, and the wind being for worship"; we have often heard it used for same day the Ancona left for Galle and China. It is possible, of course, that Colonel Gonpost did not carry out his intention, but, if so, it hardly harmonises with the statements of Reuter shout his accepting service under the Chinese Government and throwing up his commission in the British Army to do so. It is certainly not the direct or proper route for China to go back from Bombay to are numerous interesting articles in the issue If the dictum of Hegel be true, that "the people Aden, though of course the journey may be thus performed. There is no attraction in the Arabian port which could draw the gallant soldier explorer as he has been to it for. a temporary sojourn. We are not aware of any man-of-war purchased by the Chinese .Government, and on her way out to China, which Colonel Gornon could, for any occult reason, wish to join at Aden. Why, therefore, he should take a passage to Aden is one of those mysteries no one can, without some better information than we have at present, pretend to understand. Curiously beauty and grace." enough, the telegrams forwarded by Reuter concerning the engagement of the Colonel by the Chinese Government have all been despatched long subsequent to his departure in the Ancona for Bombay with Lord Rigon. Gordon leave for Aden or has he since left for China vid Galle or Calcutta? All speculation will, however, doubtless be set at rest on the arrival of the next mail steamer, which will bring intelligence as to whether he returned to Aden or is now really on his way hither. We can hardly doubt that he has accepted an appointment in China, but his movements certainly appear somewhat erratic.

THE account given in another column of the movement and fate of LI Yung-chor, the leader of the rebellion in Kwang-si, seems to be a reasonable one, and the explanation of the recent report that another man suffered death in his place appears feasible enough. At the same time it must not be forgotten that such devices as substituting another for the real offender are not unfrequent in China, where officials are often called upon to answer with their heads for non-success in any mission they undertake. The latest and most notable instance is the case of Ch'ung How, who still languishes in prison, not knowing when the silken cord may be presented to him. But even supposing that La Yong-chor is admitted to be kept alive by a person calling himself Li, and it seems no easy matter are apparently not inclined to trouble any being satisfied, doubtless, that the latter. chief to China, and can' at' most keep the frontier disturbed. The relations between China and Russia are indeed in such an uncortain state as to claim the undivided attention of the Peking Authorities, and it is not to be wondered at if, as alleged, they have rather curtly refused to entertain a request from Annum for sid in suppressing the border banditti. The Chinese Goverament are not very careful of international obligations, and their view of their duties the Dragon Throne is doubtless to the effect that they should be confined to the reception Press Office, where it is published, or to the of the yearly cum shaws offered to the Emperor. It is possible that the French may eventually have something to say in the matter, if, as reported, it be true that they intend to annex Tonguin to their colonies in Cochin-that their Government is satisfied with the Burlingame Treaty. As the treaty was negotiated for and by them, by their special commissioner, Mr. Burlingame, who resigned his position as United States Minister to Peking to do the work of the Chinese Government, it is exceedingly probable that the Peking authorities are fully satisfied with it, But (says the San Francisco Post) there are two parties to the treaty, one of whom is not satisfied, and if it cannot therefore be modified by diplomacy it will be abrogated by

THE LATE LI YUNG OHOI AND HIS REBELLION.

In cornection with the report that seemed to and oredence to some extent in Poking on the ubject of the alleged execution of the robel L Yung-ohoi, the following, from a high Chinese military official who was in the vicinity of the operations against the rebal named, if true, may be worth record :-

Li, orginally a robol, was induced to make feelty by the officials sent against his party. The valuable assistance he then afforded the Throne soon gained for him the highest military rank possible in China. This occurred years ago. Dissatisfied at what he considered neglect of late years on the part of a Government no longer in want of his active cooperation in the field, he induced a number of moneyed men to join with him in the formation of a corps of chuang yung, or temporary legions, stating that he was noting under secret orders from the Throne, which it would be impossible for him to disclose until some ulterior date. ! Greedy after military rank and the profits attending the formation of these irregular forces, many men of money joined the movement. Li, together with his brother, also military officer of the rank of shew pei, led has joined his forefathers, the insurrection | these men, amounting to eight thousand inoluding those induced to join as rank and file, across the frontier line dividing China from Annam. Here he acknowledged that his opeto put it down. The Chinese Government rations were to be not for, but against the Tsing dynasty. Constarnation at this declaration filled the breasts of his followers, and further over the rebel band in Kwang-si, some aix thousand of them were for disbanding and rethining. But having crossed the border are now powerless to do any serious mis- being by this time in pursuit, there seemed to be much danger in attempting to retrace their steps. By this time Li had placed himself in a position that was fraught with danger unless he could keep-open his communications in the rear, three aides of his position being hommod i by water. While he was awaiting results, howover the camp protty nearly for his own red. His case being apparently hopoless, saizing his partnership, and accounts up to 1871 are asked The Judge, in reply, has promised to despatch two concubines, his family, and himself, when at | that the sum of $27,735 remains to be accounted. this juncture the brother stepped upon the scene and persuaded Li to forego self-destruction, towards a State they regard as tributary to arguing that it was only death any way, and that they might yet escape. The brothers embraced, and leaving the women, both escaped in conjunction with an ally, a well-known robber chief also named Li, who, well acquain ed with the mountain fastnesses, led them to a place of refuge where the troops remaining true to them rallied around their banners. The Imperialists in the meantime had seized the family excepting one daughter, aged seventeen, who had temporarily escaped, and removed them to their own camp. where, it is said, the commander of the Imperial troops ordered they should be well treated. A careful search for the missing daughter having been instituted, she was found at last hiding near the border of the adjacent lakelet. On being discovered, she immediately precipitated herself into the water, but one of the soldiers, York at 8.45 p.m. on the 17th inst., taking the diving after her, brought her to the surface; first of the new sesson's teas. Captain Park she died, however, a day or two afterwards, from fright and exhaustion it is suponed. Having showed the chief robel to slip through his fingers, the Imperial commander made overtures to the rebel Li to sell his great. A bargain having been struck, the agreement was about to be brought to a termination, when General Li became aware of the transnotion. Disgusted at the treachery of his supposed friend, the General decided upon giving himself up, and doing so, he was excented by command of the Empresses. It is narrated that be dressed himself in his full official costume on the day of his execution. The beadsman requested him to remove his heavy collar, as it would be lead, iron, etc. On Sunday morning (13th instant), likely to interfere with the operation. He complied. He was noxt asked to bend his head low, the godown keeper, he went to the godown. as, being a tall man and the executioner a short | He saw that a large hole had been made one, the requisite swing could not be got upon; through the wall and that some of the lead had the knife. It is avered that

CHIPS FROM MANY BLOCKS.

It is not the mere savage alone who has not many cases a name for religion (Müller's "Hibbert Lectures," p. 13). So far as our experience goes the language of China has no such name. In some respects religio, which, " used subjectively, meant conscientionsness, reverence, awe, and was The Chinese Legation in Washington affirm | not originally restricted to reverence for the gods," may be translated by king. With the addition of shan it means "to reverence" or "reverence for the gods," but taken alone its meaning is generally low and confined to sensuous biects. On the other hand kan is not used abstractedly, but of a religious sect, and so means rather "church" or "school of doctrine," We have already remarked that words for fear and reverence abound over words expressing love, and in the religion of China this fact manifests itself most strongly. I do not remember ever this branch of the religious sentiment, is somuch as grasped, much less practised, by the Chinese generally. In treating of Chinese religion, then, it will be necessary first of all to ask, what is the meaning we attach to the word reli-

It is interesting to note in connexion with the foregoing, that in Canton the phrase most frequently used by natives is on chan, which is translated by Williams "to quiet and content the gods, to set up gods to be worshipped." It is a mistake to suppose, as some worshipping the gods. This gives us a clus quieted. The earlier history of the Chinese, however, leads to the conclusion that their religion was not originally derived from those lower faculties and passions of ignorance, fear, or fright from dreams and spectres, but the colony twenty years. THE SLAVE TRADE IN EGYPT

An opposional correspondent of The Times a Cairo, writing on the 13th May, says :- " The question of slavery has again come to the front in Egypt, and was made the subject of a special mosting of the Council of Ministers two days ago. The immediate outse is already in outline known to the English public, but it may be useful to give the real facts. News came down trust; the last time. In all seriousness, to Cairo three weeks ago that a caravan of slaves had arrived at Siout, the capital of Upper Egypt and was encamped outside the town. All the authorities of Siout must have known of the caravan, including the officials of the special bureau established there for the suppression of the slave trade: yet the information was only brought to Cairq by a Swiss gentleman totally unconnected with the Government. A General of Brivads was at once sent to Stout with troops, and he surrounded the slavers' camp by night and seized what remained of the slaves. A few more were subsequently taken in the town, and about 90 altogether were liberated, while the whole number is variously stated at from 150 to 300. The affair has excited the greatest local attention. The tacit countenance lent to the forbidden traffic by all the local authorities of Siout is hardly more important as an indication an abandoned slave route as showing a revival of the old trade. In this emergency, action was ship for Cameroons. The whole affair was brought under the notice of the late Consul Hopkins, who was understood to have made a representation to her Majesty's Government, but no steps were taken in the matter. A few weeks age the present Acting Consul. Captain Euston. siter careful consideration of the case, requested Commodore Richards to take some active moasures, and the result was that H.M.S. Boadicen. Firebrand, and Forester were despatched to the scene of the outrage. These vessols arrived at Batanga on the morning of the 22nd March, and the Consul at once tried to open negotiations with the King with a view to a peaceful settlement. His Majesty, however, sent word that he was ready and willing to fight, and accordingly Captain Easton placed the matter in the hands of the Commodore. After time had been given for the removal of the women and children from the town, the gross opened fire on it with shell, and bombarded it for about five hours, after which a party of 20' marines and 50 blue jackets landed and burnt the town. They were repeatedly fired on by the natives, and two of them were killed. As the party were re-embarking to rature to the ships a heavy volley was fired into them, and the Commodors fell. A meteorological investigation of the tornado shows that everywhere slong its track there is evidence of a wave of water flowing in the rear of the cloudspouts, and in a direction towards the centre and upwards. At some places the debris showing this wave are carried up and over obstructions as high is three feet. These currents flowed in greatest volume up hills, in some localities washing out the entire top-soil: Fibrous roots and grass tufts show their direction to have been up-hill and they came from all points of the compass towards the top of the hill where the torusdo was at the time raging. No traces can be found of these currents flowing down-hill. Their force is shown by many level places being swept clean of soil. Leaves, grass, timber, and the debris of destroyed buildings, carried along by the current and left in its track, all arranged them. selves longitudinally to the current. In testimony of this wave the statement of George Gilbert, a resident of Marshfield, is given. He and his family were visiting about eight miles in the country, and the centre of the ternade passed within a few yards of whore they were. A wave of water apparently 15 feet high rolled in the rear of the point of contact of the cloud-spout with the earth. It rolled over them in a second, drenched them completely, and was cold as ice. There have been 150 deaths from this tornado in Marshfield and the adjacent country, while other storms at the same time killed many more over a wide expanse of territory stretching from Mis. souri to the Lakes .- Times' Correspondent.

RAINFALL TO ORDER Yet another discovery or invention from Ameica—this time not by Mr. Edison—but almost as wonderful as any of his, being nothing less than a mode of procuring rainfall to order, and therefore of peculiar interest here and more especially in India where droughts are frequent. An Indian contemporary describes it as follows :-General Daniel Ruggles, of Virginia, at the reture, appeared before them February 11th, and briefly explained his method of precipitating rainfalls by scientific means. His method-for which he has been granted a patent-is to send up to the cloud realm cartridges of dynamite or smaller explosive materials in skeleton balloons and to explode them either by time fuses or by magnetic electricity through light metallic wires connecting the balloons with the earth. INGLISH AND CHINESE , DICTIONARY, WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have to late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Panti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast sconomy of and vacant spaces which have beretofore charac- above-mentioned places. terized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese charasters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

It comprises upwards of two thousand large

When it is desired to forward letters to the United States by a sailing ship which is not notified as carrying a mail, it is only necessary to post the letters in the ordinary way, marked with the name of the ship, and prepaid 8 cents per half ounce as usual. This Office then undertakes the duty of obtaining notice of departure and despatching the correspondence. It is requested that the letters be posted if possible utleast one day before the date fixed for sailing.

Many hoxes of letters are received at the Post fastened with sealing war, but there is no impression of a seal. The attention of boxholders is called to the necessity of carefully sealing such boxes with some recognisable seal, and of sending a chitbook or receipt with them. The omission of the latter precaution leaves a doubt as to whether the contents of the box ever reached the Post Office; the omission of the former, as to whether part of them might not have been abstracted for the sake of the Postage Stamps,
